However, most Casio watches follow a similar userfriendly setting method. There are generally two methods of setting a Casio watch depending upon whether the watch has mechanical hands with a crown or an electronic watch with buttons. The crown is the knob on the side of the watch that you typically use to set the time or wind a watch. The crown controls all setting for the watch. It pulls out to two positions one for setting time and one for setting the date. You will hear a click at each position. The first click position is a halfway pulled out crown. At the second click position, the crown is pulled out as far as it extends. For watches with screwlock crowns, you unscrew the crown by turning it clockwise before you can pull out the crown. Follow these instructions to set the time on a watch with a crown such as models 1319 and 2312 The second hand will stop. You will now have control of both hands. Turn the crown to set the clock hands to the five minutes ahead of the current time and then back them out. At the time signal, push the crown in to finalize the setting of the time. Turn the crown clockwise to the correct date. If the watch has a day and date feature, turn hands clockwise to set the day and counterclockwise to set the date. Do not set the day and date between 1000 pm and 630 am because it can interfere with the proper functioning of the day and date change for the next day. Push the crown back into place to confirm the date. The M button controls the modes. Here is how to set time on a digital watch such as models 1632 and 1813 Select the seconds digits by holding the A button down until the seconds digits flash on the display. As the digits flash, press the C button, which will reset the seconds to 00. Press the M button and change the selection in the order of seconds, hour, minutes, year, month and day. Proceed in that sequence to change information to the current time and date. As the sequence progress, digits flash when selected. <http://www.smadie.fr/buhler-mtra-manual.xml>

Hold down either button to increase the speed of the selection change. All time and date functions are set this way. Press L when any digit is selected to switch between 12hour and 24hour formats. After setting the time and date details, press button A. The watch automatically sets the day of the week based upon the date information. Press buttons B and C simultaneously. If you press the buttons when the seconds are in a count range between 30 and 59, the seconds are set to 00 and one minute is added. Pressing the two buttons when the seconds are in a range of 00 to 29, keeps the minute count the same. A P appears in the display during p.m. times. There is no special indicator for a.m. times.
